David Ramirez

24 February 2006

To whom it may concern,

I am writing the present letter to recommend David Ramirez as a writer and translator. For the past two years, Mr. Ramirez has collaborated with me in the translation and proof reading of my work, showing a more than incredible skill to comprehend and manage complex subjects such as legal thought, historical and literary analysis, thereby transferring meaning from Spanish to English, and English to Spanish, according to the structure and semantic nuances of the language with which he works.

Also, I have read David's creative writing with his historical and political essays, where he shows a competent understanding of the subject that he treats. He delivers his texts tersely and concisely, showing clarity of thought rare to find among the people of his age group. He is as passionate as he tries to be objective, always showing a attention to detail, respect to the precision of language and foremost his sometimes poetic and clever conclusions.

I trust Mr. Ramirez is more than qualified to engage in any writing assignment he pursues.

Sincerely

Professor José Faur
